THINK CRITICALLY

Handwrite	vour responses	in the snace	helow, lc	entences each
IIUIIUVVIILL	VUUI I LUDUIIULU	III LIIC SDUCC	DCIUVV. Z 3	ciilciices cacii.

How is a cash excess (or shortage) calculated?
How is working capital calculated?
The major source of cash receipts for most companies is a. borrowing b. sales c. money from the government d. earnings from interest and dividends
The difference between current assets and current liabilities is a. a cash excess b. a cash shortage c. the current ratio d. working capital
True or False? A loan due in five years is an example of a current liability.
True or False? A current ratio of 0.94 indicates that a company has current assets that exceed its current liabilities.
In a cash budget, a shortage would occur when a. cash receipts exceed cash payments b. working capital is declining c. current assets are less than current liabilities d. cash payments exceed cash receipts
An example of a current asset is a. a building b. equipment c. inventory d. land

TEAMWORK

Discuss in pairs or small groups and then write your conclusions below.

9. In your team, select a business in your community. Create a list of possible cash receipts and cash payments for this organization.